Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 06 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Showers easing to leave some clear spells overnight.

This Evening and Tonight:
Showers will continue into this evening, turning heavy at times and wintry over higher ground. Overnight, these will gradually ease to leave some clear spells and a patchy frost to form. Another cold night. Minimum temperature -2 deg C (28 deg F).

Friday:
After a chilly start, there will be a mixture of sunny spells and scattered showers. Showers will fade during the afternoon to leave a dry evening with clear skies overnight. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Wet and windy on Saturday with spells of heavy rain. Mostly cloudy with outbreaks of rain on Sunday, but warmer. Sunny spells and scattered heavy showers on Monday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.